Taneytown vicinity

The Shriner/Hiltebrick Farm consists of a ca. 1870 frame farmhouse, a late nineteenth-century frame bank barn, a cement stave silo, two frame outbuildings, and a modern greenhouse. The farmhouse is a two-and-a-half story, double-pile, three-bay building covered with asbestos shingles. The house has a one-story, shed-roof porch which runs the length of the facade, and a one-story shed-roof frame entry at the rear of the building. The frame bank barn stands east of the house, with the forebay elevation facing east. The barn frame is mortised, tenoned, and pinned and has some re-used timbers. The barn foundation is concrete block. The barn ventilators have been divided into three sections, and feature decorative trim. The trim on each ventilator includes an exaggerated cornice with a moorish arch over the central section of the ventilator and triangular peaks over the flanking sections. A one-story gable-roof addition was added to the south gable end. To the north of the barn is a one-story, single-cell, gable-front, frame outbuilding. The outbuilding is covered with horizontal weatherboarding, and retains six-over-six sash. At the west side of the lane, halfway between the road and the barn, stands a frame machinery shed dating to the twentieth century. The frame shed is covered with wood siding. The Shriner/Hiltebrick Farm appears to be eligible for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places under Criteria A and C. The property is significant as a well-preserved, intact, late nineteenth-century farmstead which features buildings which are representative of the region's vernacular architecture. The farm retains its significant buildings, as well as its surrounding agricultural landscape. The farmstead retains the integrity of location, design, setting, feeling, and association.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Shriner/Hilterbrick Farm consists of a ca. 1870 frame farmhouse, a late nineteenth-century frame bank barn, a cement stave silo, two frame outbuildings, and a modern greenhouse standing on a 46.52 acre tract. The property is still under cultivation.

The farmhouse sits at the end of a long lane, and faces south, toward the road. The dwelling, remodeled in the early 1970s, is a two-and-a-half story, double-pile, three-bay building covered with asbestos shingles. The house has a one-story, shed-roof porch which runs the length of the facade, and a one-story shed-roof frame entry at the rear of the building. Two tri-partite windows have been added to the first-floor facade. Windows in the house have been replaced with one-over-one sash, with the exception of the attic windows. A brick exterior end chimney was added to the west gable end.

The frame bank barn stands east of the house, with the forebay elevation facing east. The barn frame is mortised, tenoned, and pinned and has some re-used timbers. The barn foundation is concrete block, and may have replaced an earlier stone foundation. The barn ventilators have been divided into three sections, and feature decorative trim. The trim on each ventilator includes an exaggerated cornice with a moorish arch over the central section of the ventilator and triangular peaks over the flanking sections. Some of the louvres have been replaced with glazed sash. A one-story gable-roof addition was added to the south gable end. A concrete stave silo stands off the southwest corner of the barn.

To the north of the barn is a one-story, single-cell, gable-front, frame outbuilding which originally contained a stove at the east gable end. The outbuilding is covered with horizontal weatherboarding, and retains six-over-six sash.

At the west side of the lane, halfway between the road and the barn, stands a frame machinery shed dating to the twentieth century. The frame shed is covered with wood siding.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Shriner/Hilterbrick Farm is significant as a well-preserved, intact, late nineteenth-century farmstead which features buildings which are representative of the region's vernacular architecture. The farm retains its significant buildings, as well as its surrounding agricultural landscape.

The Shriner/Hilterbrick Farm was part of the land grant, "Resurvey on Brother's Agreement." The farmhouse does not appear on the 1862 map of Carroll County (Simon J. Martenet, "Martenet's Map of Carroll County" Baltimore: Simon J. Martenet, 1862). William Shriner (who received the property from Isaac Shriner in 1858) and his wife Ann Marie, sold 1.75 acres to H.J. Hilterbrick in March 1876 but the deed was not recorded until 1888 (Carroll County Land Record Book 68: 396). "Wm. Shriner" appears as the owner of a house at this location on the 1877 map (Illustrated Map of Carroll County (Philadelphia: Lake, Griffing & Stevenson, 1877)).

H.J. Hilterbrick compiled seven tracts of land between the years 1868 and 1912 to create a farm of over 100 acres. (CCLRB 42: 41; 68: 394; 68: 396; 72: 119; 73: 139; 95: 338; 119: 284). After Henry J. Hilterbrick's death, his executors divided the farm into two tracts, a 38 acre tract and a 97 acre tract, and sold the properties at a public auction held in October 1925 (Carroll County Orphan's Court Records, Book W.A. 9: 283). John H. Hilterbrick offered the highest bid for the 97 acre tract at $7000; the 38 acre tract was purchased for $2350. The Hilterbrick family held onto the land until 1946 when they sold the farm to Elbert Lee and Bertha B. Oxley (CCLRB 190:430). The property changed ownership three times until the present owners purchased the land in 1968 (CCLRB 193:233; 373: 659; 435: 716; 1253: 156).
